

A lot has changed in 50 years and The Northside Sun has been there for it all! What began as a weekly community newspaper covering the northern portion of Jackson in 1967, has grown with the community we cover. Today The Northside Sun is a multimedia news and advertising source covering the city of Jackson and the surrounding communities of Ridgeland and Madison. We are still the largest printed weekly newspaper in the state as well as offering a large digital presence at northsidesun.com, and a robust social network on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram. The Northside Sun also publishes a monthly magazine in print and online.

Through printed and online readership, The Northside Sun publications reach more than 318,000 readers every month. The printed newspaper holds a unique and favored place with readers in the market still mailing to the homes of more than 8,000 weekly subscribers. An additional 1,600 copies are placed on promotional racks. The monthly Northside Sun magazine is published digitally and is available in print primarily as a pick-up publication. The Northside Sun newspaper and magazine is the most physically visible with 60 rack locations and more than 200 drop off locations in high traffic areas throughout Jackson, Ridgeland, Madison and Flowood, MS., including upscale waiting areas and physicians' offices.
